

StarAgri achieves ISO 9001:2008 & ISO 22000:2005 Certifications for Quality Management

November 24, 2010

International recognition confirms StarAgri's commitment to quality standards and customer satisfaction

StarAgri, a provider of integrated post-harvest management solutions has been awarded accreditation with ISO 9001:2008 & ISO 22000:2005 certifications by Bureau Veritas.

This reflects StarAgri's relentless efforts in maintaining information systems to the highest order at micro and macro levels . It also demonstrates StarAgri's commitment to maintain highest quality standards in the preservation of stocks in warehouses as well as in the perfect order of storage ethics.

"StarAgri is dedicated to providing customers with high- quality services across every aspect of our business. Achieving ISO certification is an important milestone for StarAgri." said Amith Agarwal, Director - StarAgri.

ISO 9001:2008 & ISO 22000:2005 is an internationally recognized standard for Quality Management Systems (QMS). By defining systems and formalizing key processes, StarAgri is ensuring that best practices are consistently applied to improve service quality on a regular and demonstrable basis.